Short quizzes

HANNAH launches DRAN

The HANNAH project consortium has launched DRAN, the Digital Repository of Antisemitic Narratives. One of the major outputs of the project, it collects common antisemitic narratives and offers counter-narratives that can be launched against them. The narratives gathered in the repository are both country-specific (for example, as expressed by Serbian football hooligans) as well as general (for example, the blood libel narrative). Each narrative is categorized and tagged for better contextualization.

Creating a virtual community

One of the goals of the HANNAH project is to create a virtual community of educators and the general public to promote awareness about antisemitism and create a forum in which ideas and resources to combat it can be exchanged. First steps have been taken by launching the virtual community Facebook group. We invite you to join us!

Publication of HANNAH oral history interviews

30 interviews with second-generation Holocaust survivors in Germany, Greece, Poland and Serbia have been conducted by project partners Jewish Museum of Greece, Jugend- und Kulturprojekt e.V., Terraforming, and the Galicia Jewish Museum. Interviewees speak about their lives and of their encounters with antisemitism. Excerpts can be watched here.

2. What is meant by the term "secondary antisemitism"?

- a) Antisemitism against second-generation Holocaust survivors
- b) Antisemitism that deflects guilt
- c) Antisemitism from left-wing politics
- d) Antisemitism in social media

One of the most known slogans commemorating the victims of the Holocaust is "Never again". How do you understand the modified version "Never again begins with you". Could it be an appeal for action against antisemitism?

Coordinated by the Jewish Museum of Greece, the HANNAH Virtual Learning Environment is now published online and open for participants. Educators, students and the general interested public is warmly invited to sign up for the online course on the topic of "Jewish Life and Modern Antisemitism in Germany, Greece, Poland and Serbia". The course is available in German, Greek, Polish and Serbian. The self-guided course can be completed at the learners' own pace and assignments conclude each module, allowing for a reflection on the content learned. The course is structured around three modules: Jewish Identities in Europe, Understanding Modern Antisemitism in Europe, and Approaching the Shoah. Also, the virtual online course includes oral history interviews.

Youth Competition

The Hannah project partners proudly announce our multinational youth competition "My town's Jewish history".

The competition is aimed at students in Poland, Germany, Greece and Serbia (aged 12-21), and will:

- engage students to learn more about local Jewish history
- raise awareness for past and present forms of antisemitism
- foster European democratic values by promoting active remembrance

For more information on how to join the competition, click here.

Four training seminars in each country are organized by each HANNAH project partner to enhance knowledge on local Jewish history and the Shoah, and increase awareness on antisemitism, develop innovative tools against antisemitism, and contribute to combating it through capacity-building, awareness raising and policymaking.

The HANNAH seminars target educators, librarians, archivists and students. They include presentation of each partner (Jewish Museum of Greece, Centropa, JKPeV, Terraforming, and Galicia Jewish Museum) on the Jewish history in each of the countries, and take place in different locations throughout the partner countries, to spread HANNAH's message. Participants are introduced to HANNAH educational materials (including the Virtual Learning Environment and the Digital Repository of Antisemitic Narratives) and are encouraged to work with this material.

You can read more about past HANNAH seminars here.

Founded in 2000 as a non-profit historical institute in Vienna and Budapest, CENTROPA interviewed 1,200 elderly Jews in Central and Eastern Europe, asking them to share their life stories and family photos with us. Through our online database, as well as through short multimedia films and travelling exhibitions, we connect Europeans to 20th century European-Jewish history – and with each other through student competitions and training seminars for teachers. Since 2016, Centropa has also had an office in Hamburg, Germany.
